

LCD Soundsystem

Self-Titled

(DFA/Capitol Records; February 15)

Happy New Year Earthlings.

YEAH! We are proud to announce the highly anticipated new album from the king of disco punk funk James Murphy, aka LCD Soundsystem, with the self-titled full length debut to be released in February.

Filled with infectious bass lines, space rock melodies, and megablaster vocals, this double disc album is proof of how hip to the music the DFA truly are with releasing another treasure to shake your tail feather. One Disc is comprised of all new material and the second is a collection of the vinyl singles that made LCD Soundsystem a critical and DJ fave like "Losing My Edge", "Yeah" and "Give it Up".

Born in New Jersey, James moved to NYC after participating in a load of punk bands and formed DFA records in 2001 with pal Tim Goldsworthy. The duo have surely created A DEAFENING buzz in indie music this decade and are endlessly praised for their artists which include The Rapture, Black Dice, and The Juan Maclean.

First track "Daft Punk is Playing At My House" welcomes and encompasses the galaxy rock that makes LCD Soundsystem so special. Other singles like "Movement" and album tracks like "Disco Infiltrator" and "Too Much Love", combine the dance elements he has become known for with a new sense of songcraft saved for a DJ who is also in love with the classic LP format.

Register your interest now!

For more on LCD, don't hesitate to call.

Pam, x111
pam@girlie.com

Jessica, x133
jessica@girlie.com